

CROSSING PATHS: THE DIVERSITY IN MEXICO-US MIGRATION

TUES, APRIL 15
at 4:30 pm

Belfer Case Study
CGIS South (S020)
1730 Cambridge Street

FILIZ GARIP

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF SOCIOLOGY AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Mexicans in the United States are a diverse population. But this diversity often gets lost in scholarly work and in the popular press. This lecture will explore the sources of the diversity in the Mexican migrant stream, which, for more than a century now, has remained stable in its presence but changed remarkably not only in its composition and origins in Mexico, but also in its destinations and settlement patterns in the United States.

PHOTO CREDIT: PATRICIA MARTIN-SANCHEZ

SPONSORED BY COMMITTEE ON ETHNICITY, MIGRATION, RIGHTS | INSTITUTO CERVANTES EN HARVARD (OBSERVATORIO)
DAVID ROCKEFELLER CENTER FOR LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES | HARVARD LATINA/O STUDENT ALLIANCE